RUTGERS COOPERATIVE EXTENSION

Rutgers Cooperative Extension is the State wide outreach of Rutgers University. Congress passed the Smith-Lever Act in 1914 that created Extension. Funding is provided by Federal, State and Local Government. Researched based, educational programs are provided for N.J. residents through each local county office in the state. The Ocean County office is located in Toms River.

Rutgers Cooperative Extension provides leadership development. It offers practical information to help with decisions on problems facing the public relating to agriculture, home garden, landscape, fisheries, environment, natural resources, nutrition, health, family and economic well being and youth development.

Becoming involved with Extension can be a very exciting and educational experience. You are welcome to attend classes or workshops, be placed on a mailing list of your interest or serve as a volunteer working with youth and local groups. You can become a Master Gardener or serve on a committee to plan future programs. Contact us for more information.
