

When Vibrio Strikes: Raw Shellfish Illness, Response, and Prevention

Featured Speaker:

Virginia Wheatley

Environmental Scientist 4

Shellfish Project Coordinator

New Jersey Department of Health

For many New Jerseyans, summer evokes images of sun, sand, and shellfish! Oysters and clams are delicious and nutritious, but eating them raw involves a certain level of risk. Learn about naturally occurring Vibrio bacteria, Vibrio illnesses, and how regulators and the industry work together to protect you. The discussion will include steps you can take to avoid getting sick.
